The StackForge standard

1

The first minute matters

Every core action should make sense before a tour, lecture, or support article is required.

2

Respect beats tricks

No forced ads, fake urgency, or friction designed to annoy a person into paying.

3

Every product gets its own room

A reef merge game, a daily kindness app, and a gravity defense game should not sound or look interchangeable.

4

Retention is earned

Daily structures, archives, mastery, and progression matter only when the moment-to-moment product is worth returning to.
